Index of Content Video: passive voice Write Argumentative Essays Articles Letters and Email More Links Following Exercises with Answers, Examples, and Grammar Rules. Grammar exercises PDF-book Grammar rules with examples Present simple and continuous passive: The car is repaired. The car is repaired. Passing simple and continuous passive: The car is repaired. The car was repaired. Current perfect passive: The car has just been repaired. Passing perfect passive: The car was repaired. Future simple passive: The car will be repaired. Future perfect passive: The car will have been restored. Current and perfect conditional passive: The car will be repaired. The car would have been repaired. The passive voice in English was formed to be formed with the verb and the past participle, which differs for regular verbs (translated, translated) and irregular verbs (taken, cast). Statement: The letter was written. This store was opened. This will be done on time. Question: Is the letter written? Is the store opened? Will it be done on time? Negative: The letter was not written. The store was not opened. It won't be done on time. The ongoing is as follows: (Other continuous tenses are normally used in the active voice, not in the passive.) Present: A new house is built in our street. Past: A new house was built in our street. In all the examples above the agent are not mentioned. We don't know who wrote the letter or opened the store. Similarly; Flowers are planted in the garden. (We don't know who did it). If we want to say who planted the flowers, we the agent at the end of the sentence and use the representation through. The flowers were planted by my mother. But: The window is shattered with a (The stone is not the agent. We don't know who crushed the window. We just know how he or she did it). Direct and indirect objects If there are both direct and indirect objects in the active voice (My friend sent me a letter), the indirect object (my friend), does not become the direct object (a letter), usually the subject in the passive voice. Active: My friend sent me a letter. Passive: I was sent a letter by my friend. (This form is more natural in English than a letter was sent to me by my friend.) Likewise: They offer Trevor a place. - Trevor is offered a place. The infinite without being in the active voice some verbs are followed by the bare infinite (infinite without). In the passive form, we use most such verbs with the infinite with. Active: We've seen them come. She made him do it. Passive: They were seen to come. He was made to do it. But: They let us go. - We're let go. Use the passive is used: 1. If the action is more important than the agent. A demonstration was held. This theatre was built in 1868. The important thing is what happened, not who did it. 2. If the agent is not known. He was offered a job. (Someone offered him the job.) They are supposed to be good students. (Some teachers suppose it.) The difference in meaning between the simple and continuous a new house was built in our street. (The house is finished.) A new house is built in our street. (They're building it these days, it's not finished.) I was introduced to Mrs Jones when her husband arrived. (Her husband arrived in the middle of the launch.) When her husband arrived, I was introduced to Mrs Jones. (Her husband first arrived and then she introduced me.) Notes This form is typical of impersonal and formal style, this is why you can often find it in public notifications, announcements, instructions or scientific articles. English is spoken in this store. Visitors may not smoke. The seal must be removed. In a less formal style, the active voice is more usual. English is spoken in this store. - We speak English in this store. He was seen in Dover. - They saw him in Dover. The seal must be removed. - You must remove the seal. In the English language, this form is more frequent than in many other languages. Furthermore, you can find some structures in English that are not possible in some languages. I'm told you're going to have a baby. It is thought that the crises will end soon.
